Art and Sustainability - Sacha Kagan 2011
Kagan starts his analysis pointing at the Western development model and the modern worldview that lie at the heart of unsustainability. He characterizes the modern worldview as based in the classical scientific method and as atomistic, materialistic, individualistic and Eurocentric. Kagan's assumption is that in order to change our actual culture of unsustainability in a sustainable one, we will have to look for an alternative worldview and go beyond utilitarian rationality that is so very common in our contemporary cultures and in most analyses of sustainability. We will have to engage ourselves in a really fundamental rethinking of our culture and our ways of thinking, knowing and seeing ourselves and the world. With an overview of ecological art over the past 40 years and a discussion of art and social change, the book assesses the potential role of art in a much needed transformation process. Review in: International journal of cultural policy.19(2013)1(141-143).

The Beast in the Boudoir - Kathleen Kete 2022-07-15

Kathleen Kete's wise and witty examination of petkeeping in nineteenth-century Paris provides a unique window through which to view the lives of ordinary French people. She demonstrates how that cliché of modern life, the family dog, reveals the tensions that modernity created for the Parisian bourgeoisie. Kete's study draws on a range of literary and archival sources, from dog-care books to veterinarians's records to Dumas's musings on his cat. The fad for aquariums, attitudes toward vivisection, the dread of rabies, the development of dog breeding—all are shown to reflect the ways middle-class people thought about their lives. Petkeeping, says Kete, was a way to imagine a better, more manageable version of the world—it relieved the pressures of contemporary life and improvised solutions to the intractable mesh that was post-Enlightenment France. The faithful, affectionate family dog became a counterpoint to the isolation of individualism and lack of community in urban life. By century's end, however, animals no longer represented the human condition with such potency, and even the irascible, autonomous cat had been rehabilitated into a creature of fidelity and affection. Full of fascinating details, this innovative book will contribute to the way we understand culture and the creation of class. in French Studies In the three decades following World War II, the French government engaged in one of the twentieth century's greatest social and architectural experiments: transforming a mostly rural country into a modernized urban nation.

Through the state-sanctioned construction of mass housing and development of towns on the outskirts of existing cities, a new world materialized where sixty years ago little more than cabbage and cottages existed. Known as the banlieue, the suburban landscapes that make up much of contemporary France are nearopposites of the historic cities they surround. Although these postwar environments of towers, slabs, and megastructures are often seen as a single utopian blueprint gone awry, Kenny Cupers demonstrates that their construction was instead driven by the intense aspirations and anxieties of a broad range of people. Narrating the complex interactions between architects, planners, policy makers, inhabitants, and social scientists, he shows how postwar dwelling was caught between the purview of the welfare state and the rise of mass consumerism. The Social Project unearths three decades of architectural and social experiments centered on the dwelling environment as it became an object of modernization, an everyday site of citizen participation, and a domain of social scientific expertise. Beyond state intervention, it was this new regime of knowledge production that made postwar modernism mainstream. The first comprehensive history of these wide-ranging urban projects, this book reveals how housing in postwar France shaped both contemporary urbanity and modern architecture.

Jean Cocteau, l'empreinte de l'ange - Marielle Wyna 2005

Dans l'univers foisonnant de Jean Cocteau, la figure angélique intrigue, D dérouté, interpelle par sa présence discrète mais obsédante. Bien plus qu'un simple thème, ce personnage, qui apparaît avec des visages divers tout au long du parcours d'écriture, fonctionne comme un motif structurant. Bien qu'héritier d'une tradition millénaire, l'ange, chez Cocteau, cristallise les intuitions, les aspirations et les questionnements de son auteur. Tour à tour " signe " numineux, objet du désir, porteur de l'" expiration ", reflet idéalisé de l'artiste-Narcisse, " tortionnaire nocturne ", psychopompe et initiateur poétique, il s'inscrit dans la représentation coctalienne de la création, où il occupe la fonction essentielle de catalyseur. Cette étude, qui s'engage sur les traces de l'ange au cœur de l'imaginaire protéiforme de Cocteau, lève un coin du voile sur cet absolu insaisissable et éminemment personnel que le poète nomme " l'invisible ". Elle éclaire sous un jour nouveau la quête existentielle qui sous-tend la démarche créatrice d'un auteur trop souvent considéré comme " touche-à-tout " et qui, cependant, a donné naissance à une œuvre pleinement singulière, dans ses images, ses interrogations, et dans sa configuration même.
